

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A computing device includes a network connector located on its front panel. The location of the network connector allows a user, such as a system administrator, to connect a management console to the front of the computing device to facilitate management operations.

202503-01043